JOHN ROBERT POWERS ACTING SCHOOL STUDENT TO APPEAR ON THE CW'S "GOSSIP GIRL"

Network Television Broadcast Station The CW To Air Episodes of 'Gossip Girl' With John Robert Powers Teen Student

(Los Angeles, April 23, 2008) – President of John Robert Powers, Ron Patterson, announced today that another one of the acting school's students booked a reoccurring role on the popular CW Network show "Gossip Girl." Teen actress, Yin Chang, who has attended John Robert Powers acting classes on Long Island, New York since 2006 started shooting her episodes on "Gossip Girl" in mid April. Yin Chang will appear in the role of Sally Yuki along side other cast members Blake Lively, Leighton Meester, Penn Badgley and Chace Crawford among others.

The CW's "Gossip Girl" centers on privileged teenagers who attend an elite private school in New York City. The television drama is based on character, Blair Waldorf envied by her friends and the adversary of many fellow rich girls. Her ideal world begins to collapse, however, when her ex-best friend, freshly excluded from her previous boarding school, enrolls at Blair's private school.

Yin Chang is just one of several breakout talents who have recently emerged from the John Robert Powers school system which currently has over seventy-five acting and modeling schools in the United States, Canada, Asia and Europe. Children, teens and young adults from all over learn the in-and-outs of acting for television and film at John Robert Powers. John Robert Powers acting students center their curriculum on television commercials and theatrical workshops, scene study, soaps and sitcoms, improvisation, audition techniques, cold readings, voice and diction, monologues and film work.

While Yin Chang took classes at John Robert Powers Long Island she booked a national commercial for Verizon Wireless. Yin has signed with CESD NY for theatrical and freelances with Innovative NY and is managed by JMM.
